Enjoying our Journeys: Finding the Matterhorn

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Janet E. Walbert
Vice President for Student Affairs, Arcadia University

The challenges and opportunities along the professional highway are what we need to energize and mobilize us. As we move through different phases of our careers, we often adjust to opportunities and external pressures. Higher Education provides an excellent environment for developing new interests, making the most of experiences and being a positive influence. We will focus on strategies to embrace personal priorities in our work and to balance competing expectations.

Dr. Walbert has held positions in higher education including 20 years as the Senior Student Affairs officer at Arcadia University (formerly Beaver College). Her areas of expertise include leadership development and women's issues, along with a strong commitment to international education. Dr. Walbert served the National Association for Student Personnel Administrators (NASPA) as President in 2007-2008 and Past President for 2008-2009. She has been recognized by colleagues for her work in the field, receiving the University of Vermont Salve Dignitate Award, 1999, and being named a NASPA Pillar of the Profession, 2007.
